EVERY MAN IN GERMANY TROOPS AT LIEGE TRAINED TO CARRY GUN

> Military Service Compulsory, Male Are Liable to Military Service After Age of Seventeen.

THERE ARE TWO RESERVES

Since the European war began, much regulations and much misinformation has been disseminated. Military service in Germany is compulsory. Liability be-gins at the age of seventeen and ends at the age of forty-five, but actual serv-ice begins at twenty.

The rigorous law applies to all, rich and poor, aristocrat and laborer.

The term of compulsory service in the German army is seven years in the first line or active army; two of these in the ranks and five in the reserve, except in the cavalry and horse artillery, where the periods are three and four years. During this reserve service, the soldier is regarded as belonging to his corps and joins it twice in the five (or four) year period for six weeks of training. After being in the first line army, the German soldier passes into the landwehr, or second line army. He serves five years in the infantry, or three years in the cavalry and horse artillery, in the first ban of the landwehr. Infantrymen are called out for training twice in this period, each time for eight or fourteen days. Landwehr cavalry and horse ar-tillery are not called out in time of peace. The soldier then is passed into the sec and ban of the landwebr, until he reache At forty the German soldier goes then into the landstrum, or third reserve body, in which he is liable for military duty until he is forty-five years old. In ordinary times the landstrum is strictly a home defense, but in this war the Kalser finally called out the landstrum for ac-tive duty. After forty-five the German soldier is exempt from mobilization, but it is said that many Germans past forty-five joined the celors at the beginning of the great conflagration.

ON THE GREAT WHITE WAY. By O. O. MINTYRE,

New York, Aug. 23.—Eugene Zimmerman, papa-in-law of the Duke of Manchester, fled from his haunts several weeks ago when brought face to face with a breach of promise and cailing modest little amount of $160,000. Zimmerman stoutly maintained that he hadn't, so far as he could recall at the oment, been breaking any innocent young hearts and seemed to be utterly unable to recall the plaintiff. Broadway winked at Zimmerman as much as to say, "You gay old dog." But now it seems that Zimmerman might not have broken this little heart. The other day a Mabel Smith was arrested in a raid accused of offering a girl for immoral purposes, violating the excise law and sambling. The police say Mabe: Smith is none other than Icy Warehard, of Elizhurst, L. L., who filed the suit against Zimmerman. She was trapped by Detective Hanley, who round as Done Mabel Smith was arrested to a rold

Eugene Walter, the playwright, who never slept on park benches and whined at managers' doors to get his plays read at managers' doors to get his plays read as every writer has declared, was talking the other night about one of the New York critics of the drama. "He is an extremely brilliant but sarcastic soul," said Walter. "We were dining the other night when a playwright glared terribly at him as he passed."

"Why is Playwright Frank so down on me. I wonder?" said the critic. "Oh," said I, with a laugh, "you know well enough why he's down on you. "You wrote last month that the plot of his new play was no good."

"Well," said the critic, "why should he care. I said at the same time that it wasn't his plot."
